

Linux Commands

Section 1: Linux Command Descriptions

Command	Description
<code>ls</code>	Lists files and directories in the current directory
<code>pwd</code>	Shows the full path of the current working directory
<code>cd</code>	Changes the current directory
<code>mkdir</code>	Creates a new directory
<code>rmdir</code>	Deletes an empty directory
<code>touch</code>	Creates an empty file
<code>cp</code>	Copies files or directories
<code>mv</code>	Moves or renames files or directories
<code>rm</code>	Deletes files or directories
<code>cat</code>	Displays the contents of a file
<code>less</code>	Views file contents one page at a time
<code>head</code>	Shows the first lines of a file
<code>tail</code>	Shows the last lines of a file
<code>chmod</code>	Changes file permissions
<code>chown</code>	Changes file ownership

<code>df</code>	Displays disk space usage
<code>du</code>	Shows disk usage of files and directories
<code>top</code>	Displays running processes and system usage
<code>ps</code>	Shows currently running processes
<code>kill</code>	Stops a running process
<code>man</code>	Displays the manual page for a command
<code>echo</code>	Prints text to the terminal
<code>grep</code>	Searches text for a pattern
<code>find</code>	Searches for files and directories
<code>clear</code>	Clears the terminal screen

Example

`drwxrwxrwx`

d is if it is a directory or - if it is a regular file

r - read permissions, w - write permissions, and x - executable permissions

Types of owners include: User (owner of file), group (the larger group that the user is a part of) and others (other people)